

Emergency Preparedness with First Responders - Webinar Series

As the year turns toward summer and wild weather again, memories about past events are stirred to life. Emergencies are about the damage caused, but equally about a changed sense of safety in our environments.

Red Cross supports individual, households, communities, and organisations to prepare for future disasters. We may not be able to avoid emergencies but being better prepared can help everyone to feel calmer and more in control.

Please join Australian Red Cross as we host our emergency services colleagues to talk about disaster preparedness, response and recovery, and the importance of working alongside each other to build community resilience.
